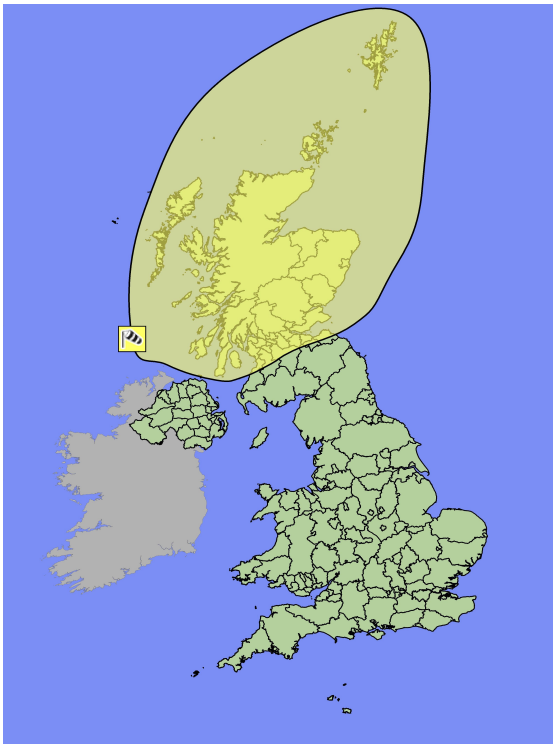
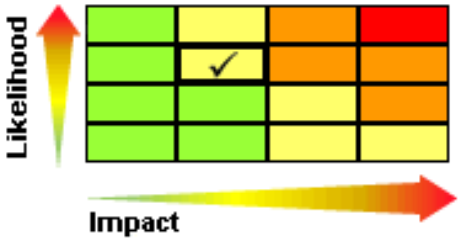
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A very deep area of low pressure will pass close to northwest Scotland on Tuesday night and track northeastwards close to the Northern Isles during Wednesday. Westerly gales and locally severe gales will develop on the southern flank of the low bringing gusts of 60 to 70 mph well inland, and gusts as high as 80 mph for exposed parts of north and west Scotland (see Amber warning area). Expect some restrictions on exposed bridges and potential disruption to travel.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind

Valid from 16:00 on Tue, 29th Jan 2013 until 21:00 on Wed, 30th Jan 2013

A spell of very windy weather with gales and severe gales in places, will spread across Scotland during Tuesday night and early Wednesday. Note that this is an update to the warning issued yesterday.

The public should be aware of the need to take extra care and of the potential for disruption, particularly to travel.
